Gennaro Esposito was born in Vico Equense on the Amalfi coast of Campania. He was a disciple of one of the greatest chefs from Italy, Gianfranco Vissani. Esposito started his specialty restaurant, Torre del Saracino in the idyllic setting of his hometown in 1992, specialising in fish, cheese and vegetables produced locally and regionally. Esposito always seeks to remain true to the flavour of his ingredients. His cuisine magnifies the shades of the texture and taste of the ingredients clearly, brought out by his traditional southern Italian style. Alain Ducasse is known to be an admirer of Esposito and considers Torre del Saracino to be one of his favourite restaurants in Italy.
