FINE CUISINE

GREAT WINES

UNIQUE DINING

Wine with the Stars ✨

Wine plays an integral part in completing a meal. With fine cuisine comes an even greater need for exquisite vintages and the wineries of this year's World Gourmet Summit (WGS) are nothing short of spectacular. Reading like a who's who of the best wine regions of the world, these seven wineries along with their representatives embody the best of the oenological world.

From one of the most revered wine regions of the world, Bordeaux, is Château Le Tertre Rotéboeuf. This winery stands for exclusivity, what with their production of only 2,000 cases in a year. And what sets them further apart is the fact that all their grapes (a combination of Merlot and Cabernet Franc) are handpicked. Château representative, Adam Brett-Smith, will definitely vouch for this. Besides his love for wine, Brett-Smith enjoys motorcycling, shooting, opera and ballet.

Staying in France but moving to another respected wine region, Burgundy's Domaine Jacques-Frédéric Mugnier is a château that has always dedicated itself to protect and safeguard nature's purest expression in its wines. Represented by the vintner himself, Frédéric Mugnier, wines produced from this winery is renowned for its elegance and power. Mugnier, a licensed pilot, took over the vineyard from his father after a six-month crash course in oenology and viticulture nearly three decades ago.

Famed for preserving and sharing the same passion as the wine region it is based, Côtes du Rhône's Maison Paul Jaboulet Aîné has always been keeping true to the traditions of only growing and producing the best vintages. At the same time, the winery has also been practising sustainable agriculture, combining traditional methods of winemaking and modern technologies. Christophe Brunet, the château's ambassador, will be its WGS representative.

From picturesque Tuscany comes one of Italy's best – Sassicaia, Tenuta San Guido. With a history that spans seven decades and counting, its Bolgheri was the only wine from a single estate to be granted Italy's prestigious Denominazione di Origine Controllata. With such high standards achieved and represented by the very able and respected Sebastiano Rosa, Sassicaia, Tenuta San Guido will certainly showcase the best the Italians have to offer.

The notion that size of a vineyard relates to the quality of vintages produced is proven otherwise by the much acclaimed vineyard of Weingut Egon Müller Scharzhof. Originating from the German region of Mosel and famed for their spectacular Rieslings, winemaking at this winery is kept to its traditional roots, with all grapes harvested by hand and approach to production is minimalistic. Revered Singapore food and beverage (F&B) connoisseur and the official wine consultant for WGS, Dr N K Yong will be representing the winery.

Winning the hearts over with its famous vintages made from the Sauvignon Blanc varietal, Weingut Tement has a favourable climate and ideal location to thank for its magnificent wines. With extremely aromatic bouquets and vibrant fruity flavours, it's no wonder that it's easily one of the most celebrated Austrian wineries of the world. Its winemaker, Armin Tement, will be here to share the philosophy behind its quality assured winemaking process.

Known for its winemaking history that spans three centuries, Bodegas Torres still remains as a family winery until today. The family's surname has long been linked with wine. Their ancestors have worked the vineyards in Penedès, a land with a millenarian tradition of wine. Dedicated to working the land and passing on their commitment from generation to generation, Ivan Aquino, the winery's representative for the South East Asian market will be at WGS to present its spectacular wines.

Prolific writer, television celebrity, wine cognoscente and even a respectable singer – these are some of the many hats worn by Oz Clarke. But all of these, his wine expertise stands tall above the rest. His oenology career began when he captained the wine tasting team of Oxford University. He then went on to be the wine correspondent for The Daily Telegraph and publishing his collection of wine guides and books, Oz Clarke's Wine Guide, New Essential Wine Book, New Classic Wines and Oz Clarke's Wine Atlas.

Shifting our focus from the world of wines to the fine art of mixology, WGS is proud to welcome a talented and passionate mixologist – Josh Begbie. The head bartender of Der Raum, one of the best bars in Australia and perhaps the world, he has developed a mixing style all of his own and this has made him one of the most sought after mixologists of his time. With a flair for the contemporary craft of cocktail making, Begbie has definitely scaled new heights in mixology.

The organisers would like to take this opportunity to thank all partners and supporters for their continuous effort and contribution to World Gourmet Summit 2010.
